JUDGE MARK COOMBE

I spent most of my primary school years on Waverley Station near St. Lawrence in Central Queensland, my dad, Ken managed this 80 odd thousand acre property for Stanbroke Pastoral Company. I attended boarding school in Rockhampton for five years in the late seventies and then enjoyed four years at Gatton Agricultural College.

In the early nineties I decided to capture the rural life that my work had moved me away from. So with camera and saddle I headed out into stock camps all over Australia and over a period of 6 years published three books; "A Taste of the Land", "Leather Dust Tin and Rust" and "A Day in the Outback" which I'm happy to say sold out. Painting has always been something I wanted to do, but felt it was beyond my ability.

However by 2013 the kids had left home and I'm thinking, surely if someone else can paint then I can as well. So as the saying goes, if you want to do something enough, then you can do it. I think it was a case of being persistent enough to keep doing whatever I had to do to improve.
